i never said that. the choice was btw (1) wiping the slate clean and establishing an order of rotation going forward that did not take account of past service and sticking with that (which is what i supported, and which, by the way, predated the 1/18 email version reflecting my swap with Noel) VERSUS (2) discarding the order of rotation he suggested and devising a system based on past service.

I think Bart's response would be that we are following the approach you suggested -- namely, sticking with the rotation he e-mailed around on 1/18 come hell or high water. (I think we should try to get Moose involved, which would make life a little easier. I also owe you a night.)
